Arts, Social Sciences, and Humanities (ASSH)

I. Pathway Overview Description

The Arts, Social Sciences, and Humanities (ASSH) Career Pathway prepares students for careers in communication, media, education, public service, and other people-centered professions through an interdisciplinary foundation in the arts, social sciences, and humanities. Learners develop critical thinking, creativity, cultural awareness, and communication skills essential for understanding human behavior, social structures, and contemporary societal issues.

The curriculum integrates theoretical perspectives with practical applications through creative outputs, research projects, and community-based engagements under the ACTIVE Way of Learning. Students are exposed to areas such as media production, social analysis, and civic engagement, enabling them to express ideas effectively and contribute meaningfully to society. The pathway emphasizes ethical responsibility, empathy, and uprightness, preparing students for higher education and professional roles that require strong communication, critical inquiry, and social awareness.
